One of the interesting features it the free, tolerant sentiment of Amerof the concert to musicians will be the introduction of a new form of musical composition originated by Mr. O'Sullivan. This is the Irlandaise, or "In the spirit of Ireland," written to characterize the Irish temperament. It consists of two contrasted passages, one expressive of happygo-lucky freedom and cheerfulness, while this is succeeded by a passage of slower and more melancholy music, to indicate the depression that frequently follows hard after happiness with the Celt.

Mrs. Douglas Webb will sing the opening of Mr. O'Sullivan's setting of Byron's "Manfred," and Mr. Webb will give several songs woven around the story of the wandering German minstrel Singuf. Karl Schmidt will play an Irish air with What Is Being Done For variations, and Charles Letzler a violin sonata. The composer will play several of his Irlandaise, an Irish rustic dance and a number of miscellaneous piano pieces. The Rev. Father Walsh and a party will occupy one box, while another has been engaged by Miss Lula Mattingly and her party. Judge Matt O'Doberty has also spoken for a box. The sale of seats at Smith & Nixon's is already large.

If I were to characterize the Irish music I should say it was intensely emotional, though it stands perfectly the test of close inspection by the musical scientists. In some respects it reminds one of the old Grecian modes, the minor sevenths so suggestive of the aeloian, the augmented intervals as were sung in the Temple of Apollo. Under the careful tutelage of Rev. The class is one of the largest ever instructed at St. Philip Neri's and includes nine girls and seven boys, and all seem to realize the importance of the solemn ceremony in which they are to take part. The ladies were handsome and deserve special mention for their hospitality, their courtesy, their untiring zeal and their care for the personal welfare of each and every one present. Seated in the center were Rev. Father Connor, Toastmaster James Clark, the officers and visitors. Altogether unexpected the toastmaster, who was in a happy frame of mind, told the story of struggle between the Irish and Dutch, which had gained fifty-seven members for Sarto in two months, the phenomenal work of President Arnold, and then presented that worthy gentleman with a THE handsome watch charm, expressing the hope that he would continue their President forever. The recipient was too surprised to speak, but in a few words tendered his thanks and then suggested they give their attention to the good things before them.

After ample justice had been done the menu and cigars were lighted the genial toastmaster jollied the ladies and asked that they be given a rising vote of thanks, which was carried with a cheer. He then introduced Grand President Kelly, who declared himself happy to witness this big initiation, which marked an epoch in the life of the Kentucky jurisdiction. After explaining the principles of the Young Meu's Institute he gave Sarto Council high praise, and said its work adds some new features. As the Fourth had inspired the officers with greater ambition. Paying a glowing tribute to Fred Arnold, he wished there was one like him in every council and that the good work would continue.

CONTEST WILL SOON CLOSE

There are now remaining only a few weeks for the contestants and their friends in our great popularity contest to finish their work. The Kentucky Irish American has, at great expense and considereble trouble, arranged to send four persons to the great Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. Their railroad fares from Louisville and return and their hotel bills at the Lindell Hotel for a week will be paid by this paper. The most popular single gentleman, the most popular single woman and the most popular married couple is the scheme mapped approaches no doubt the friendly rivalry between the contestants will become more spirited.

The Kentucky Irish American is enwithout hard work and plenty of it every named in Louisville, Jeffersonville and popularity contest. It is not yet too late to spring new candidates.

It is suggested that the friends of the paper generally, and particularly those in the societies named above, do us the contest or not, but it would be pleasing no doubt, to any one of the candidates to have subscriptions made out in their votes allowed. If our friends would urge this matter at the regular meetings they could do a great deal toward increasing the circulation. The editor finds it see everybody, even should he begin at 7 in the morning and work until midnight. The great Exposition will be well worth going to see. Our special correspondent at St. Louis, Mr. Frank G.

Cunningham, has a word to say this week in another column about the Irish exhibit, which will no doubt be read with interest. The company of Irish actors which has been engaged for the production of Irish plays at the Irish section of the St. Louis Exposition encludes Dudley Digges, P. J. Kelly, Miss Violet Mervyn and Miss KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS Maire Quinn, all of whom have appeared before Dublin audiences with marked success. Among the plays to be performed will be several of those produced by the Irish Literary Theater. A cablegram from Rome under date of

The Fair will have special attractions for Catholics and Irish-Americans. It will be an education for the young and an inspiration for the middle aged.

Leading men all over the country are observing the lack of attendance on the part of Protestant young men at "church services," while they praise Catholic men for attending divine worship. A Protestant, in the New York Examiner of recent date, writes as follows, and every Catholic young man should read it care-

Nearly every Sunday morning we have occasion to pass a large Roman Catholic church. At that hourabout 10:30 o'clock-the building is crowded to the outer doors, for probably the second or third time during the morning. A few minutes later, when the great congregation pours out into the avenue, one sees that a marked feature of the crowd is the number of young men it contains. What is it that attracts them there? No intellectual feast has been spread for them -they would not have appreciated it had there been. Is it not because they have been taught, from childhood up, that there is something vital and vitalizing in the service? * * .* The forms of Protestant worship are not vital in their character. Elaborate or simple, they carry in themselves no such signifi cance as does the ritual of the mass. It is not the external observance, but the message it conveys, that gives it value, if value it has. And to give it value the message must join the Young Men's Institute he be one that burns in the heart of the messenger till it finds utterance. The young are not stirred by critical speculations. They want a message positive, searching, authoritative, hot with conviction. When a man is on fire with such a message he will have hearers and will find his way to their hearts. The spirit of devotion will not be lacking when the vital truths of the Gospel are presented with flaming tongue and positive conviction.

Catholic young men who read this in Louisville should know that they are observed as closely by Protestants as the Catholic young men of New York were observed by this writer. All Protestants of intelligence, like this writer, have MR. HILL'S TRIBUTE TO THE respect for men who live up to their faith.

Catholics should thank God that when they go to mass they can receive "a message positive, searching and authoritative" and "their spirit of devotion" should not be lacking.

SATOLLI DINNER

Monday evening the members of Sa colli Council, Y. M. I., gave a dinner at Fountain Ferry Park in honor of Prof. Patrtck O'Sullivan, who was formerly a member. Proud of Prof. O'Sullivan's magnificent achievements in Europe among the master musicians of the world and under the eye of the exacting and merciless critics of Berlin and Paris, the members of Satolli Council conceived President—Con J. Ford. Vice President—John J. Sullivan. Recording Secretary—Edward J. Keithe idea of arranging a dinner as an expression of their appreciation of their former brother's work.

John F. Coady presided as toastmaster and made many happy sallies of wit as the evening passed. Prof. O'Sullivan, in response to a toast, spoke very entertainingly of his sojourn in Europe, and told of a number of comical and exciting experiences that he met with on his voyage Vice President—Joseph Cooney.
Recording Secretary—Patrick Welsh.
Financial Secretary—William Burns, and after he reached the mother country. One of the professor's most exciting experiences was encountered upon an attempt to obtain an audience with the Kaiser in the city of Berlin. Several Mr. O'Sullivan had proved ineffectual, of representing himself as a newspaper reporter. This worked splendidly, and the musical genius, in the guise of an Recording Secretary—Thos. Callahan. Financial Secretary—Joe P. McGinn, humble penciler, secured admission into the august presence of the great Emperor without further ado. But further along, when the splendid assemblage that had gathered to do honor to His Majesty was dispersing and the grand officials of the German Government and foreign potentates were being handed into their handsome equipages, Prof. O'Sullivan, in his role of reporter, nearly met his Waterloo. When he saw a place made for him in a carriage beside grand gentleman in regimentals his American independence rebelled at further disguise, even to enjoy a drive on a splendid boulevard in so handsome a carriage and with such fine company. While the party was busying itself making room our Patrick bolted for the tall grass and was nearly run through by a guard in escaping inio the crowd. The members of Satolli gathered about the board at Tony Landenwich's pretty park on the Ohio, where each and every one measured his ability to give utterance to mirth-provoking nothings, and the party succeeded very well. The evening was spent very pleasantly, the feast of reason and the flow of soul, and the many evidences of good cheer generally combining to make the occasion one of the most enjoyable Satolli has ever had. The members present were Louis B. Baker, George C. Francis, Henry Lancaster, James Fahey, C. J. Obrecht, C. J. Breckel, William P. McDonough, John M. Ryan, Lawrence Musselman, P. J. Stuetzel, John J. Crotty, Harry T. Colgan, William J. O'Connor, Joseph Lenihan, Samuel J. Boldrick, William J. O'Sullivan, John Coady, Charles F. Lauer, Will Ross, Charles Weisenburger, Will McNally, Frank C. Clerget, Percy Abell, Pat O'Sullivan, James Zahner, Edward Pope, James Nalley, George to Zarn and George Kilcourse.
